About the American Red Cross

The American Red Cross prevents and alleviates human suffering in the face of emergencies by mobilizing the power of volunteers and the generosity of donors. As the nation's premier emergency preparedness and response organization, the Red Cross is there to help and comfort people through devastating crises—from house fires to earthquakes. Survivors of disaster, patients needing lifesaving blood, members of the military and many more. With nearly 500 chapters across the U.S., the Red Cross has a presence in every community; alongside their global Red Cross partners, they are part of the largest humanitarian network in the world. For more than 130 years, the American Red Cross has been helping neighbors down the street, across the country and around the world.

- Disaster Relief: The American Red Cross responds to nearly 70,000 domestic disasters annually, sheltering, feeding and comforting those affected – from a family who has lost everything in a house fire to an entire city affected by a large-scale disaster.
- Health & Safety: The American Red Cross empowers more than 6.5 million people and businesses annually with lifesaving health, safety and preparedness skills through training courses such as first aid, CPR, water safety and Babysitter Training.
- Service To The Armed Forces: The American Red Cross supports military members and their families through a continuum of care that runs throughout their time of service and after. Our programs offer global reach while providing local services.
- International Relief: The American Red Cross responds to disasters, builds safer communities and educates future humanitarians around the world by mobilizing the power of the world's largest humanitarian network, made up of 189 Red Cross and Red Crescent national societies.
- Blood Services: The American Red Cross is the single largest supplier of blood in the U.S. providing about 40 percent of the nation's blood supply for medical emergencies and lifesaving treatment of chronic illness.
